Appleton, Wisconsin

Volume 36 Number 2, September 2021

Gathered together, we find our light
And each spark shifts and multiplies,
Scattering its radiance on our ordinary lives
Like everything precious, more valuable when shared.
Like every common miracle, made of the stuff of stars.
Let the light shine.

Watch for it falling on each other's faces,
Count the beams, catch them, let them be reflected back,
See the hope, see the promise.

Gather to do good.

With all the hope I can muster I am wishing for a safe, in person branch meeting in September.

If possible, those of us that feel safe and comfortable gathering in person can look forward to our first in person branch meeting for over a year on Wednesday, September 8th. This evening will give us the chance to get involved in many worthwhile pursuits including our October book sale and Tech Savvy. Giving our time to lead, host or participate in a book discussion, help plan an auction, or join a travel group adventure is good for us as individuals and good for the group.

In all the good we do, we keep our mission, our vision, our values, and our focus in mind.

Gather to grow.

Thanks to the hard work of Sylvia and her program committee, each of our branch meetings this year will give us a chance to learn and become more enlightened and engaged community members.

Our newsletter is page after page of opportunities to grow.

Each of our five book groups gives us a chance to expand our worlds.

Every interest group requires us to learn new skills and more importantly, gives us a chance to laugh and enjoy each other's good company.

Gather together.

Give some thought to who you can invite to join us at our meetings and events. New, experienced, and prospective members like to feel included. A car ride (even with masks) is a wonderful chance to connect. Any small act of kindness can be a bright spot after a year of loss.

Becky will again author our newsletter articles beginning next month. We are all grateful for her monthly inspiration!

AAUW WISCONSIN

Because of the Pandemic and Zoom, I have been able to participate in many interesting branch activities around the state. I find that each branch has its own special personality. Appleton Branch members can be proud of our amazing branch.

The more you participate; the more you will benefit from your membership in AAUW. Grab the opportunities that are available to you. One of the catch phrases from AAUW that caught my interest when I joined years ago was: a lifetime of learning! That's us! Always learning!

Learning, friendship, and action with AAUW!!

I'm originally from the Albany, NY metro area. We moved to Erie, PA when I was 10. As valedictorian of my graduating class, I received a $50 scholarship from the Erie branch of AAUW. Perhaps this was foreshadowing?

I attended Michigan State University graduating with a BA in Psychology. I also met and married my husband, Michael, at Michigan State. We lived over a year in the southern metro area of Detroit where I worked teaching pre-school. A job change took us to Memphis, TN where our son, James, was born. I actually joined AAUW in Memphis for one year to meet people. Soon after that, though, I began an MS/PhD program at what is now the University of Memphis. We had a second child, Elizabeth, while I was dithering over possible dissertation projects. I then again took a job teaching preschool. Before I could resolve the dissertation dilemma, we were on the move with Kimberly-Clark to Neenah. For several years I taught Human Development classes for Marian University's evening/weekend program in Appleton and then on campus.

I met Mary Grace and Judy Phillips through Girl Scouts. When AAUW Appleton was doing Math and Science Rock! in collaboration with Girl Scouts, they convinced me to be the GS representative on the planning committee for the event. Before I knew it, I was joining the Appleton branch! I've served the branch as historian, Membership VP, President, and now as Communications Chair. I publish the newsletter, maintain our website, and do our social media posting on Facebook. I also served 2 terms as the State Membership VP and am currently the AAUW-WI District 5 Coordinator for 8 state branches.

My most memorable AAUW experience was attending the 2017 AAUW National Convention while I was branch president. Meeting and talking with AAUW members from all over the country was amazing as was listening to speakers such as Judy Woodruff and Supreme Court Justice Sonia Sotomayor. Going to Capitol Hill and lobbying for women at the Senate Office buildings was quite an experience as well.

My main role model was my mother. Besides passing on to me a passion for books & reading, she taught me the power of perseverance and being capable & independent.

Issues I am most passionate about are literacy & the power of reading/education, social justice, and voting rights. At the Book Sale, you'll find me head wrangler of the paperback fiction section. I also tutor English for Fox Valley Literacy. I chair the Afternoon Literature and Second Choice Book Groups as well as the Social Justice group. At election time, you'll find me directing one of the Fox Crossing polling locations.

Besides AAUW, I am Lifetime Girl Scout and active volunteer on the Girl Scout Gold Award committee for our region with Mary Grace and Judy Phillips. I'm a fairly new member of League of Women Voters of Appleton. I've been a member of a Neenah book club since 1988 and for most of those years, I've been the organizer of the group. I hang out with the Leaven book group monthly. During the summer you may catch me ushering for Neenah's Riverside Players Theater in the Park. Many of you know that I am an avid scrapbooker as well.

I am truly thankful to Mary & Judy for nudging me into joining AAUW. It has enriched my life in so many ways from developing leadership skills, learning new things, embracing new opportunities, and making so many new friends who believe fervently in our mission of advancing equity for women and girls.

AAUW Appleton has traditionally reserved a table for the Women's Fun Luncheon. This year's luncheon will again be virtual. We can attend in a Gather for HER Virtual Party with a minimum of 10 people at $50 per person. Joan Moeschberger will be coordinating sign-ups for us so contact Joan if you are interested in participating.

This year's featured speaker is Dr. Scharmaine Lawson.

ETHNIC & ELEGANT

Here it is August and time to start making lists of members and menus. But when I think about our fall get-together, it just seems like too much. We need to be careful a little while longer. So, my thought is to resume dinners in small groups in 2022. We will see how things are going and have a sign-up in December.

Also, I would like a co-chair who could help me with the computer part of this group. If you are interested, call me and we can discuss duties, etc.

AAUW READS - YEAR #2!

One year ago, we launched a new book discussion opportunity...AAUW Reads. Although we have many book groups, we did not have one book to give us common ground for reading, for discussing, for learning, for connecting us as members of our branch. It began with Just Mercy by Bryan Stevenson for the first part of the year and continued with The Woman's Hour by Elaine Weiss for our next book. Our discussions were thoughtful, insightful, and meaningful...and fun as we gathered together! And we are ready to kick off our 2021-22 year with a new book!

Our next AAUW Reads book is How the Word Is Passed* by Clint Smith. From the book jacket: "Beginning in his hometown of New Orleans, Clint Smith leads the reader on an unforgettable tour of monuments and landmarks – those that are honest about the past and those that are not – that offer an intergenerational story of how slavery has been central in shaping our nation's collective history and memory." The chapters include Monticello Plantation, The Whitney Plantation, Angola Prison, New York City, and others. Clint Smith is a staff writer at The Atlantic and a poet. His writing has been published in The New Yorker, the New York Times Magazine, Poetry, The Paris Review and elsewhere.

We hope you join us! Check out the newsletter each month for updates and discussion opportunities!

"A work of moral force and humility, How the Word Is Passed offers a compelling account of the history and memory of slavery in America. Engaging and wise, this book combines history and reportage, poem, and memoir. It is a deep lesson and a reckoning." -MATTHEW DESMOND, Pulitzer Prize-winning author of Evicted.

Influential Women STEM Essay Contest - Honorable Mention

Rachel Carson by Emma Elizabeth Kinzelman

I have grown up knowing that girls can do anything they want to do, be anything they want to be, and know everything they want to know. But even as recently as in my grandparent's generation, this was not always true. Girls were often encouraged to become teachers, nurses, or homemakers; they were seldom encouraged to seek advanced degrees or participate in male-dominated fields. One woman who received an advanced degree and entered male-dominated fields at a time when few women would consider even trying to follow this path was Rachel Carson. She was a world-renowned ecologist, zoologist, and activist by the time of her death in 1964, but her path was not an easy one. When she attended college in the 1920s, only 7.6% of women were enrolled in undergraduate program and even fewer sought graduate degrees in the biological sciences. Rachel Carson deserves to be remembered because she specialized in the STEM fields well before girls were encouraged to do so, and because her work ultimately initiated the environmental movement and highlighted key issues that are still important today.

Growing up, Rachel Carson loved writing and being in nature and often went on walks on her family's property. She loved writing so much that her first story was published when she was only eleven years old. She knew from a young age that she wanted to be a writer, and up until a mandatory science class, she was going to be. Rachel attended the Pennsylvania College for Women, now known as Chatham University. One of her requirements in college was to take a science-based class, and she chose biology. She loved that she got to see the natural world up close; she loved it so much that she changed her major to biology. This was a hard decision to make because she knew it would be hard for her to find a job as a female scientist. Even though she knew it would be hard, she was inspired by her biology Professor Mary Scott Skinner, and she continued to follow her dreams. She worked hard and graduated from Chatham University in 1929, but she wanted to continue her studies and attended graduate school at Johns Hopkins. She later graduated with a masters degree in zoology. This may not seem like that big of a deal, but in the 1920s and 1930s, less than 10% of women even went to college, and even fewer attended grad school.

Rachel Carson wrote many books, but one of her best known is Silent Spring. It became a best seller and may be one of the most influential books in the environmental movement. Silent Spring is about the chemical DDT or Dichlorodiphenyltrichloroethane. This chemical harmed wildlife because its main use was an insecticide. Rachel Carson published Silent Spring in 1962 after she was made aware of birds being killed by the chemical in Cape Cod by an old friend. When she was fighting for her life with breast cancer while also trying to ban DDT, she told the Congressional subcommittee that, "Our heedless and destructive acts enter into the vast cycles of the earth and in time return to bring hazard to ourselves." She, unfortunately, would not live long enough to see DDT banned in 1972.

Rachel Carson's writings can be described as poetic; this could be part of the reason her books were best sellers for so long. Her books were also informative, and they helped inspire many civilians to support the environmental movement. Silent Spring won Rachel Carson many awards including the Conservationist of the Year and the 1963 Achievement Award.

Rachel Carson is important and deserves to be remembered because she showed the world that girls can get an education, that they can make a difference, and that they can change the world if they have resilience. She proved that women could attain similar educational levels to men when it was uncommon for women to even go to college. She became a bestselling author in a male-dominated field that she was told she would fail in. She also demonstrated that if we do not care for our earth now, it will not be here to care for us later.

About the Author

Emma Elizabeth Kinzelman is a 7th grade student at Appleton Connections Academy. She is in Mrs. Johnston's class who hails Emma as an excellent student. This is the first essay contest that Emma has entered. She selected Rachel Carson as the topic because she had learned about her in her ecology science project for school that involved water pollution and cleaning up the beaches. She also had a book on Rachel Carson. Emma's favorite school subjects are science, especially biology, and history. Outside of school, she likes to go horseback riding and dancing. Her career interests fluctuate, but she is thinking about something in medicine.
